Reason For Policy

5. An After-the-Fact Purchase Order (or “Confirming Order”) may be utilized only in emergency situations to make payment to a supplier that has provided goods or services and issued its invoice after the goods or services have been received. In all other cases, goods or services cannot be acquired and university funds cannot be committed outside of the approved university procurement methods. All Confirming Orders are reported to the campus business office to ensure that this procurement method is used only in emergency situations.
